2. Seminars

Foreign language conversation seminars are for persons who possess some degree of conversational proficiency and wish to maintain or improve that proficiency. Seminars meet for two-hour sessions, once a week. Groups are organized on a "demand" basis; enrollment is limited to a minimum of four students and a maximum of eight. Applicants should fill out the "Application for Foreign Language Conversation Seminars," copies of which can be obtained from the Training Liaison Officers. The applicant will then be interviewed by the seminar leader to determine level of competence.

3. Self-Study Programs

Self-study programs are designed only for persons who already have acquired some facility in the language to be studied, and consist mainly of work in the language laboratory. Upon completion of any of the courses listed in paragraph 1, above, a self-study program may be arranged with the instructor. An effective self-study program requires a minimum of five hours' laboratory drill each week. The laboratory is open from 0700 to 2000 Monday thru Friday, from 1000 to 1400 on Saturday; and is equipped for self-study in thirty-five languages.

4. In addition to the foregoing courses and programs, the External and Language Training Division organizes and sponsors lectures in foreign languages and scheduled projection of foreign language moving pictures. (See individual announcements.) Also available are recorded foreign and Voice of America foreign language broadcasts. Current foreign language newspapers and magazines also may be taken from the language laboratory and not returned.

External Program

1. It is probable that arrangements could be made for Agency employees in the following intensive, full-time programs at the Army Language School, the Navy Language School, or the Foreign Service Institute, Department of State. Emphasis is on the spoken language. Some instruction is given, however, in reading and writing, and most courses include some degree of area familiarization and lectures. All candidates for these programs will be considered by Qualifications Review Panels. Applications for all semi-intensive and intensive courses should be received by ELTD/TR at least one month and preferably three months prior to registration dates.

2. Courses in the more commonly studied languages are available at all universities in the Washington area. These courses are, for the most part, non-intensive, three-credit courses, with emphasis on reading. An exception to this is the Institute of Languages and Linguistics, Georgetown University, which offers semi-intensive and intensive courses in approximately 45 languages, most courses emphasizing the spoken language. Applications for all courses, except semi-intensive and intensive programs, should be received by ELTD/TR at least one week prior to registration dates.

Proficiency Testing

As a service to individuals desiring an assessment of their language proficiency, and to supervisors, ELTD/TR is developing a program of language proficiency testing. The following schedule of tests has been arranged. Tests

CONFIDENTIAL

25X1A in languages not scheduled can be developed on request providing there is a reasonable number of persons to be tested. Requests for development of tests should be addressed in writing to Chief, ELTD/TR, approximately two months before testing is desired. Individuals desiring to be tested may register by telephoning extension [REDACTED] preferably prior to two weeks before the date of test. Individuals and offices are invited to take advantage of this service.
